

Research Grant Opportunity: The Gene Burd Award for Research in Urban Journalism Studies

Deadline for proposals is November 15, 2023.

AEJMC and the Urban Communication Foundation are co-sponsors of the Gene Burd Award for Research in Urban Journalism Studies. The purpose of this annual grant is to stimulate research that explains, enlightens, inspires, and improves the practice of journalism and communication in order to advance our understanding of journalism in urban environments.

The grant this year will be $2,500. It may be awarded to a faculty member, a graduate student, or a team of faculty member(s) and/or graduate student(s). The award program is open to a diversity of methods and topics within journalism and communication studies. Grant funds may not be used for PI stipend, university indirect costs or equipment purchase. The recipient(s) of the grant will present preliminary research findings and analysis during the session sponsored by the Urban Communication Foundation at next summer's AEJMC conference in Philadelphia.

The deadline for submitting research proposals is Wednesday, Nov. 15, at 4:59 p.m. EST. All application materials should be emailed in one attachment to Lillian Coleman at Lillian@aejmc.org (attached files must have a document suffix, such as doc., docx., or pdf). All application elements should be combined into one file, in the order outlined below. Incomplete proposals will not be reviewed.

Proposal Criteria

- The proposal can be no longer than 1,500 words.
- Applicants must be current members of AEJMC.
- Only one proposal per person is allowed. Applicants submitting as part of a team may not submit another proposal.
- The 1,500-word proposal must include these elements:
 - a. Title, explanation of the topic, and statement of research questions.
 - b. Statement of the principal activities of the project, including a description of the research method and plan for analysis.
 - c. Statement on the importance of the project: How it will contribute to the body of knowledge on urban journalism and communication.
 - d. Statement of the project's anticipated outcomes (e.g., an article? book chapter? dissertation?).
 - e. A budget outlining the main categories of spending. (Grant funds may not be used for a PI stipend, university indirect costs or equipment purchase.)
 - f. A timeline by which the data gathering and analysis will be completed.
 - g. A letter of support from the applicant's academic supervisor (e.g., chair or thesis advisor).
 - h. A three-page curriculum vitae for each applicant.

Selection Process

The Gene Burd Awards Committee will announce its selection of the grantee on or before Dec. 10, 2023. At the time of the decision, the committee will award $1,500 to the recipient, to help defray research expenses. The remaining $1,000, to help defray travel expenses to the AEJMC conference, will be disbursed upon the committee's receipt of a brief report of the scholar's preliminary findings, on or before May 1, 2024.

Questions may be directed to Committee Chair Bob Trumpbour at rct4@psu.edu.
